Canucks living paycheque to paycheque

STRETCHED Nearly 60 per cent of Canadians would have trouble paying the bills if their paycheque was delayed by one week, a new polls suggests.

The Canadian Payroll Association survey says not only are the majority of Canadians living paycheque-to-paycheque, but they have little ability to put money away for their retirement.

The survey, released today, said 59 per cent of Canadians would have trouble making ends meet if they missed a paycheque.

"We were surprised that people were that close to the line," said Patrick Culhane, president and CEO of the not-for-profit association.

Culhane said those results are despite the common advice from financial planners that people should set aside three months of expenses for such items as rent, groceries and monthly bills, in case of an emergency.

Run sparks new tradition

krista.sylvester@metronews.ca

A recent death in the family was the start to an emotional run for a Calgary family, but it was also the start of a new family tradition at the 29th annual Terry Fox run yesterday.

The Kingston family, mother Alex, father Martin and sons Neil, 9, and Joel, 5, recently lost Martin's father to cancer and decided to run 5 km in his name at the annual event held at Eau Claire Market.

"It was emotional at the start at the beginning when they had a moment of silence and we just kind of looked at each other — it was touching," Alex said. "But this is important for us to be here as a family and it's the start of a family tradition."

Alex said she always had a special place in her heart for Terry Fox, but now more than ever wants to continue to support the cause.

"I think it's a great thing what he did and it's just so important to remember."

Mother and father were especially proud of Neil, who at only nine-years-old ran the 5 km without any help while mom pushed Joel in a stroller.

"I had a lot of fun," the young runner said.

Terry Fox spokesperson Chelsey Gillings said final numbers weren't in for the run yet, but was hoping to match at least the 1,300 participants the event had last year.

"It's a lot of families running together and this year we allowed people to bike too. It's been a lot of fun and we hope to match what we raised last year," she added.

Last year the Terry Fox run and other events raised $135,000 to go towards cancer research.

Calgary-Glenmore vote today

Voters in Calgary will decide today whether a provincial riding that has been Tory blue for four decades will be changing colours.

Calgary-Glenmore has been held by the governing Progressive Conservatives since the late 1960s. A by-election was called when former deputy premier Ron Stevens resigned prior to his appointment as an Alberta Court of Queen's Bench justice.

"I don't think there's much there to indicate that the Conservatives will lose." Keith Brownsey

The Alberta Liberals chose Avalon Roberts to represent them. The Tory candidate will be Calgary alderman Diane Colley-Urquhart, while the Wild Rose Alliance will field former leader Paul Hinman. Eric Carpendale will represent the NDP and Len Skowronski the Social Credit.

Calgary-based political scientist Keith Brownsey says the riding will probably stay Tory blue, but bubbling discontent over the Alberta government's handling of the economic crisis could lead to an upset.

"I don't think there's much there to indicate that the Conservatives will lose."

Are homeless migrating?

Closing of Cecil Hotel cited as possible reason for shift

KRISTA SYLVESTER
krista.sylvester@metronews.ca

Peaceful Sunday mornings have turned into mornings filled with the sound of the squeaking and rattling of shopping carts down the alleyway for at least one southwest resident.

J.N, 26, says she has noticed more homeless people in her area and in her alleys collecting bottles and what she presumes is garbage in her trendy neighbourhood of Mission over the summer.

"Oh yeah, there are a lot more than there used to be. We had some of the regulars before but now there is a different type coming in, I find them a lot more aggressive," she said. "They are pushing their carts around by five or six in the morning."

She says she is not sure why there are more in her area but thinks the closing of the Cecil Hotel may be a factor.

ROBIN KUNISKI FOR METRO CALGARY

Some Beltline residents are noticing an increase in the number of homeless people in their neighbourhood alleys. One Mission resident believes the Cecil closure may have forced the homeless migration from the downtown into surrounding areas.

But Ward 7 Ald. Druh Farrell believes while there aren't necessarily more homeless people in the area, she does think there are more people collecting bottles because of the increase in the deposit for returning bottles.

"I think that perhaps there are more collecting bottles in the inner city because there is more value, but I don't think there is an increase in criminal activity. I think the number of people picking bottles has increased," Farrell said. "I think if there isn't vandalism it's not too huge of a problem … but I think that's an anomaly."

Despite report, alderman wants cops on trains

MEREDITH O'HARA

CRIME Calgary Police presence on transit lines might not be necessary to curb crime.

In a report released Thursday, the city administration said transit officers and Calgary police should continue working together, but transit officers should be the ones on the trains.

Peace officers typically respond to nuisance calls according to the report, like public drunkenness and fare evasion. And though ridership has increased the crime rate on public transit was down in 2008.

However, Ald. Ray Jones thinks Calgary Police should be on the trains. He said when police rode the train in his ward the response was very positive.

"People feel a lot more secure," said Jones.

Jones said the peace officers should be augmented with Calgary Police.

According to the report if police took over, Calgary Transit would still need employees to check fares, making it the more expensive option.

Calgary transit is also asking for $1.32 million to hire 12 peace officers and two staff members in 2010.

Alderman wants more road repairs

BUDGET A city alderman is hoping there's room in the 2010 budget for road improvements in his area.

Ward 2 Ald. Gord Lowe wants to create a better road network for truck traffic coming from the northwest.

"We've been talking with industry representatives and stakeholders and we've come up with some improvements that would facilitate the movement of aggregate," Lowe said.

He said a better road network would mean gravel can be moved into the city easier.

Lowe's motion asks that the 2010 budget include intersection improvements especially along 144 Avenue NW.

The improvements, he said, will make life easier for truck drivers and "get the gravel trucks out of the communities."

Embedded reporters in Kandahar closely watched, records show

War correspondents covering Canada's efforts in Afghanistan have many faithful followers, but none more faithful than their own government.

Documents obtained by The Canadian Press detail how carefully reporters embedded with the military at Kandahar Airfield are monitored by officers in the field. The reports are then circulated widely to officials back in Ottawa.

The records, obtained under Access to Information legislation, show that what reporters are asking about, what they are writing and what they have been told are the subject of regular briefing notes shared with everyone from officers in Kandahar to commanders in Ottawa to civilian officials reporting to the prime minister.

Chris Waddell, a journalism professor at Carleton University, says nobody should be surprised that reporters are monitored. But the extent of the effort shows how careful the Tory government is about the message from Afghanistan.

"They want to control the media and want to control what's going on and what's coming out from on the ground in Kandahar," says Waddell.

"The media may not realize the degree to which they're being watched."

At least six agencies receive the briefing notes, including the Ottawa headquarters of the Afghanistan task force and the Department of Foreign Affairs. Public affairs officers in Kandahar and their civilian counterparts are often the only ones embedded reporters can ask for interviews or information, giving them an inside look at what stories have been filed and where reporters are going with inquiries. Government could fall as early as Friday, sources say POLITICS A critical vote that could bring down the minority Conservative government has been tentatively scheduled for next Friday, sources tell The Canadian Press.

The ways and means motion is usually a routine matter signaling an impending vote on a budget bill, but it might very well trigger an election. Conservative sources say the vote will likely be introduced on Sept. 18, and must be voted on immediately.

A spokesman for Government House Leader Jay Hill said that "the final timing decision has not yet been definitely made."

The Liberals have said they will no longer support the Conservatives, and the Bloc Quebecois seems ready to hit the campaign trail. That leaves the NDP to decide the fate of Parliament, and members are sounding skeptical about the chances of a compromise. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Court ruling on little-known fish to have big impact: Experts

ENVIRONMENT A ruling involving a little-known B.C. fish is being called one of the most important environmental law decisions ever to come out of a Canadian court.

Legal experts say the Federal Court ruling on the Nooksack dace could affect how the federal government manages endangered species across the country.

Several environmental groups challenged the Fisheries Department in Federal Court over its management of the small minnow, which only lives in four freshwater streams near Vancouver. They argued a 2006 policy decision not to include the location of those streams in the recovery strategy for the obscure fish violated the Species At Risk Act.

Justice Douglas Campbell agreed, and in a strongly worded decision late last week chided the fisheries minister for "a reluctance to be held accountable" for policies that contradict the law. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dozens dead after Kazakhstan fire

ALMATY Fire roared through a drug treatment centre in Kazakhstan with a history of safety violations, killing 37 people as patients tried to escape through barred windows, officials said. The blaze broke out late Saturday and quickly spread through the single-story Soviet-era building. About 40 people were evacuated from the building, emergency officials said.

At the city morgue, a sister of one of the victims berated police.

"They came and took him away because he was drinking too much. They said they were taking him away for six months to cure him of alcoholism but now he's dead," she wailed.

There have been almost 10,000 fires in Kazakhstan in the first eight months of 2009, according to government statistics.

'The man who fed the world' dead at 95

Agricultural scientist Norman Borlaug, the father of the "green revolution" who won the Nobel Peace Prize for his role in combating world hunger and saving hundreds of millions of lives, died Saturday in Texas, a Texas A&M University spokeswoman said. He was 95.

Borlaug died Saturday night at his home in Dallas from complications of cancer, school spokeswoman Kathleen Phillips said. Phillips said Borlaug's granddaughter told her about his death. Borlaug was a distinguished professor at the university.

The Nobel committee honoured Borlaug in 1970 for his contributions to high-yield crop varieties and bringing other agricultural innovations to the developing world. Thanks to the green revolution, world food production more than doubled between 1960 and 1990. In Pakistan and India, two of the nations that benefited most from the new crop varieties, grain yields more than quadrupled over the period.

"Norman E. Borlaug saved more lives than any man in human history," said Josette Sheeran, executive director of the UN World Food Program. "His heart was as big as his brilliant mind, but it was his passion and compassion that moved the world."

Israel, U.S. hoping for middle ground

MIDDLE EAST Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, speaking on the eve of a key meeting with the White House Mideast envoy, said yesterday that differences remain with the U.S. over resuming peacemaking with the Palestinians. Netanyahu delivered the assessment before flying to Cairo for talks with Egypt's president, a main mediator in efforts to restart peace talks. Today he is scheduled to meet George Mitchell, U.S. President Barack Obama's envoy. The Obama administration, with Mitchell as the point man, has been pressing Israel to declare a halt to construction in its West Bank settlements. Palestinians claim the West Bank as part of their future state. Netanyahu, whose Likud Party is ideologically committed to expanding settlements and holding on to the West Bank, has been bargaining for a compromise that would allow some building to continue.

Palestinians are insisting they will not resume peace talks until Israel completely stops its West Bank construction. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Peace possibilities

- One possible scenario was published yesterday by the Israeli daily Haaretz. It quoted unnamed European diplomats as saying negotiations would concentrate on drawing a border between Israel and a Palestinian state.

H&R Block Tax Course Begins September 16

How does the average taxpayer cut through the confusion of complex tax laws?

Filling out the proper tax forms without making mistakes is tricky enough. A taxpayer must also be careful to manage money year-round while being constantly vigilant for news of current, ever-changing regulations. How do Canadians make use of all the laws that were designed to give them a break? Many turn to tax professionals.

You could become a professional tax preparer.

If you like to work with numbers and enjoy helping people, you may find tax preparation is just what you're looking for. As a qualified tax professional, you'll enjoy the challenge and satisfaction of helping people save money on their taxes.

Take the H&R Block Income Tax Course.

An excellent way to learn tax preparation is with H&R Block, the nation's largest tax preparation firm. The course will provide you with comprehensive, practical training in the most commonly encountered items on personal income tax returns.

A tax-related career is perfect for students, retirees or stay-at-home parents seeking seasonal full or part-time work. Qualified students may be offered job interviews for positions at H&R Block. All you need is a desire to learn.

The only thing worse than change is ...

HineSight

Today I find myself contemplating one of the great truths of existence. The only real constant in life is this: everything changes.

In mid-September, change is everywhere. Leaves turn colour, kids are back at school, life returns to normal. This week I head back to college, completing my training to become a United Church minister. Returning to school in my forties was a huge life change. I knew there would be people in my class who were younger than me.

I just didn't realize they would be the teachers.

Experts tell us we should, "Approach change in a calm, rational manner, anticipating advantage and welcoming new challenge." They should add, "Also, you should learn to fly."

SunnySide

The fact is, most humans react to change in a similar way. We don't like it. The only thing we like less than things changing, in fact, is things not changing. Change = hysterical worrying about what life will look like now. No change = total, mind-numbing boredom.

In order to help readers handle whatever change September brings, here's a handy questionnaire .

"How Change-ready Are You?"

1. Your boss announces a new program of "internal systems restructuring." Do you: a) Anticipate updating your skills.

b) Anticipate updating your resume.

2. When faced with significant change do you see it as: a) An exciting opportunity to explore interesting new ways of being.

b) An exciting opportunity to explore interesting new medications.

3. Change is simply nature's way of: a) Effecting necessary renewal.

b) Making us all totally crazy.

4. Those best equipped to profit from difficult life changes are: a) Confident, realistic people.

b) Divorce lawyers.

5. To be assured that some things endure and never change, you have only to look at: a) The deep, abiding spiritual wisdom of the mystics.

b) Those extra five pounds on your hips.

If you answered mostly a), you're well equipped to handle change.

If you answered mostly b), you are well equipped to end up hiding under the bed.

Ditching your car can be enlightening

InTransit

I bought my first car, a 1982 Volkswagen Rabbit, when I was 16 — it allowed me to get where I wanted to go, whenever I wanted to go there. I didn't realize the full costs of that independence though. According to the Canadian Automobile Association, the average annual cost of operating a personal vehicle is $11,480; the manufacture and use of automobiles is responsible for 25 per cent of the carbon dioxide emissions causing climate change and motor vehicle accidents are the No. 1 cause of accidental death in North America. I didn't know these things when I got hooked at age 16.

It seems many Albertans are hooked on cars. We have the highest car ownership rate in Canada. Leor Rotchild is bucking the trend, having been car-free for almost 10 years now. He's designed his lifestyle to make his choice realistic and he's been reaping the financial rewards from it, travelling frequently and currently saving to go to Boston for his Masters degree. The 30-something professional made the decision after spending a year in London, England where getting around is simple without a car. When he moved to Calgary, he wanted to see if he could continue his car-free lifestyle, but he knew his decision was unconventional.

"I think it's partly a cultural thing, our city and cities in North America are built around the vehicle — it would be non-mainstream to do anything but."

Further, not owning a car is often viewed as a marker of poverty, lack of independence and for men, it can preemptively spell a dating dry-spell.

Aside from a little extra planning required, Rotchild sees mostly benefits from his car-free status. He's chosen to live and play downtown, and is able to walk or ride his bike most places. When needed, he takes a cab. Rotchild describes himself as a "neighbourhood kind of guy" and says he runs into people he knows all the time and makes new friends because in his words, he "doesn't have a big piece of metal keeping (him) from others."

The high costs of car ownership are starting to outweigh the benefits. Perhaps ditching the car is the more enlightened approach to a world a little freer of pollution, financial strain and social isolation.

Water, water everywhere — or is it?

EarthTones

Sophia Dore & Andrew Laursen

metronews.ca/earthtones

It's 1 a.m. and I am awakened by the sound of a running toilet. Laying there listening to the water trickle endlessly, I remember that the baby's diapers need to go in for another wash cycle. Then I try to remember if I paid the unusually large water bill from filling the pool this summer. And there's something else nagging at the back of my mind — oh, yeah, we're supposed to write about water conservation.

Canada is a fairly wet country. Lakes, reservoirs, and streams cover about seven per cent of our total land surface area. Most Canadians live near a body of water — in fact, most live near the shores of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River. Standing on the shore of Lake Ontario it is hard to imagine water as a finite resource. When we turn on the tap, water comes out. What's the problem?

At home, the greatest challenge is providing access to clean and safe drinking water. The needs of people for drinking water compete most strongly with the needs of agriculture for irrigation, and to a lesser extent, the needs of industry. In fact, around the world, 70 per cent of water extracted for all uses goes to agriculture. When the water is returned through drainage to streams or seepage to aquifers, it is often polluted. The pool of freshwater that can safely be consumed is shrinking while the population's need for water is growing.

So, what do we do? In wealthy countries, we have two options: Treat water, removing these pollutants, or abandon our polluted freshwater sources and turn to the sea. Water treatment is an energy-intensive enterprise, desalination even more so. So, treating and conserving our freshwater it is. Energy conservation has reached our collective consciousness, but we fail to make the connection between water conservation and energy conservation. We will only appreciate the importance of conserving water when we understand where our water comes from and what the economic and environmental costs are.

"When we turn on the tap, water comes out. What's the problem?"

Beyond our borders, access to safe drinking water cannot be taken for granted. Lack of infrastructure and high energy costs may discourage the treatment of drinking water. The most recent United Nations World Water Report finds that "physical and economic water scarcity and limited or reduced access to water are major challenges facing society and are key factors limiting economic development in many countries." The report also finds that we are not on track to meet the U.N.'s goal of improved sanitation for most of the world's population. These two factors set the stage for a global water crisis.

Economic development and epidemic prevention in the world's poorest countries, then, requires improved sanitation coupled with conservation practices. Where do we fit in? Obviously, we can provide aid such as capital for infrastructure projects. We can also play a role as consumers. We need to educate ourselves and avoid imported food products that are water resource intensive — that includes bottled water. And I need to fix my toilet.

12 ways to save water

There are a variety of reasons why a family would want to reduce their water consumption — save money, avoid taxes, lower energy use, minimize the carbon footprint — but sometimes it's hard to break old habits.

Here are a few helpful suggestions from Canadian government agencies and from bathroom and kitchen manufacturer American Standard.

Half of domestic water consumption takes place in the bathroom.

1 If a tap leaks, fix it. Just a small drip can waste seven buckets of water a day.

2 A low-flow shower head reduces consumption by 25 per cent or more without spoiling your shower experience.

3 The biggest single source of water use in the home is the toilet. Switching to a high efficiency model will cut the total flush by 40 or 50 per cent. Many municipalities will cover part of the cost.

4 Turn the tap off while you are cleaning your teeth or shaving. That's water running to waste. A quick burst to clean your brush or your razor is water well-used.

Most of the rest is used in the kitchen.

5 Again — turn the tap off when the water is running to waste. When hand-washing dishes use a partly filled sink. When washing fruits and vegetables use a sink or bowl. A spray attachment is an economical way of rinsing.

6 Save your dishwasher for full loads. The same applies to your clothes washer. You'll be saving energy as well as water.

7 Drinking lots of water is good for you. Letting the tap run until the water is cold is bad for everyone. For drinking, keep a container of water cold in your fridge.

How green is your laundry?

8 After a long day at work, tossing your clothes straight into the dirty pile can be tempting. But are those clothes really dirty? Consider wearing the garments one more time before washing them.

9 Front-loading high-efficiency washing machines use much less energy and water than conventional top-loading machines. The money you save from using less energy can offset the higher pricetag. You can save up to 50 per cent of energy in every load just by switching to cold.

If you have a garden

10 During warm weather, lawns and gardens need the equivalent of 5 mm of rainfall — no more. Much less is required when it's cool.

11 Over-watering in anticipation of a shortage is a waste. The soil won't retain the extra moisture.

12 Brooms sweep driveways better than hoses — it prevents soil, grit and debris that has accumulated and that often contains contaminants from entering our water system and drinking water supply. NEWS CANADA

Fixing a leaky tap is just one way to save water and make a world of difference.

Bankruptcies fall 5.4% from June

The number of bankruptcies in Canada rose by more than a third in July compared with the year earlier, the latest figures show. But the number fell slightly from June.

Some observers say the data from the Office of the Superintendent of Bankruptcy, released yesterday, show that the tide of insolvency swamping Canadian households is easing, a sign that the worst of the recession may have passed.

Others said the slowdown was typical of midsummer.

There were 10,726 personal and business bankruptcy filings in July, up from 7,908 a year ago, the report showed. That's an increase of nearly 36 per cent.

Bankruptcy filings were down 5.4 per cent in July from 11,338 in the previous month. The overwhelming majority of filings were by consumers. In July, 10,294 consumers went bankrupt, up 38.1 per cent from a year earlier, but down 4.9 per cent from the previous month.

Car Insurance Roadblock

Consumers concerned insurers don't want drivers with tickets or accidents

Worried Your Spotted Driving Record Means You've Got Nowhere To Turn For Car Insurance?

Don't be. While it's true that, all things being equal, your tickets and accidents make you a more expensive risk to insure than a similar car and driver with a clean driving record, that doesn't mean you should have trouble finding insurance – assuming you know where to look. Different insurance companies target different types of business and this is reflected in things like their claims service, marketing efforts, discounts, and most importantly for you, their rates.

Should I Just Accept That I'll Have To Pay A Bundle?

No. Sadly, this is a mistake many drivers make and it can be a costly one, especially if they don't bother to shop around for the lowest rate available. The key to finding the best rate, especially if you have tickets or accidents on your driving record, is to figure out which insurance company of the more than 20 in Alberta has the best rate for your particular situation. And with rates varying so wildly across companies, chances are you are not with the company that has the lowest rate for your profile right now.

Start Saving Your Money Now.

InsuranceHotline.com puts you in the driver seat by making insurance companies compete for your business. With quotes from over 20 of the top insurance companies, InsuranceHotline.com is the simplest and easiest way to make sure you aren't overpaying for your car insurance – and it's completely FREE to use. U.S. firm acquires Canadian bomb disposal tech company

TAKEOVER Allen Vanguard, a financially troubled Ottawa-based maker of bomb disposal technology, has been acquired by a U.S. private equity firm in a weekend deal that also recapitalizes the company and keeps it operating, but wipes out the value held by current shareholders.

Allen-Vanguard announced Saturday it had reached a deal that will see it become a 100 per cent-owned affiliate of investment partnerships managed by Versa Capital Management Inc., a Philadelphia-based private equity investment firm.

Versa will provide both equity and debt capital to Allen-Vanguard, which has been struggling to recapitalize as it copes with a massive debt load and looming credit payments.

In the transaction, the Ottawa company's banks will also cut some of the debt they're owed and provide a new multi-year credit agreement that will give the company financial flexibility to pursue its business plan.

Report counts oilsands 'real' cost

Alberta greenhouse gas emissions higher than some countries, it says

Alberta's oilsands produce more greenhouse gas emissions than some European countries and will produce more than all of the world's volcanoes in just 11 years if the pace of development continues, says a new report.

The report Dirty — How the tar sands are fuelling global climate change, is set to be released today.

Greenpeace commissioned author Andrew Nikiforuk, a business and environmental reporter, to write the report.

"The emissions are bigger than Estonia and Lithuania right now and in 2020 will be larger than countries like Belgium, Austria, Ireland and Denmark."
Andrew Nikiforuk, report's author

"Nobody in Canada wants to talk about the scale issues," he said. "The emissions are bigger than Estonia and Lithuania right now and in 2020 will be larger than countries like Belgium, Austria, Ireland and Denmark."

The report documents the "real" cost of the oilsands, which Nikiforuk says is the world's largest energy project. "The major energy projects in the Middle East ... they don't come anywhere near — none of them approach the scale and capital intensity of the oilsands."

The report says almost $200 billion has been or will be invested in the projects in northern Alberta, and that includes not only the oilsands, but pipelines, refinery expansions and associated infrastructure.

It adds that the liabilities are a nearly threefold increase in greenhouse gas emissions, enormous amounts of natural gas used and wasted to produce synthetic oil from bitumen and the "economic nightmare" of carbon capture and storage.

Investors mark start of meltdown year ago

ANNIVERSARY Investors will be looking backwards to go forward this week on the stock markets, as they mark the one-year anniversary of the collapse of Lehman Brothers, which signalled the start of the rapid economic downturn.

And while many might still be nursing their wounds, a reflection on the past could inspire further optimism. "It could've turned out much worse, especially when you look at where we were in December and January," suggested Doug Porter, deputy chief economist at BMO Nesbitt Burns.

"Investors are just becoming more convinced that the global economy is recovering faster than anyone could have believed possible."

It has been a volatile trek for the markets since Lehman's filing on Sept. 15, 2008, but Porter suggested that investors have been pushing forward and becoming "increasingly emboldened," so much so that he thinks they might buck the usual fall trend of market pessimism.

EU sounds warning over protectionism

OPEL SALE The European Union's competition commissioner, Neelie Kroes, has warned she will take action if there is proof of any protectionism in the sale of General Motors Co.'s European unit Opel.

The Belgian government has already said it wants the EU Commission to investigate the deal amid concern that Germany allegedly sought to protect its own plants at the cost of others. Under the agreement, the plant in Antwerp will likely be wound down while all the German plants would survive.

"State support should not be subject to noncommercial conditions such as the location of investments and restructuring measures."

Kroes's remarks were published in today's edition of De Tijd.

GM announced Thursday that Opel would be sold to Canadian auto-parts maker Magna and Russia's Sberbank, a solution Germany had pushed for.

Report finds gaps in border security

Says rail cars aren't receiving proper inspection

Thousands of shipping containers enter Canada by rail each year without proper checks for illegal drugs and other contraband, says a new report.

A border screening program begun in 2000 has fallen into disrepair, with just two officers now responsible for the vetting of some 400,000 rail cars and containers annually.

They're given almost no training, close shop on weekends, get little support from other security officers, and have few facilities for inspecting shipments.

"The amount and level of targeting has decreased due to a lack of resources," concludes the August 2009 review, obtained by The Canadian Press under the Access to Information Act.

The screening program, known as Winfall, was begun as a pilot project in the mid-1990s after security officials determined that almost no rail shipments entering Canada were being inspected.

> "Trains are a big black hole."
> Colin Kenny, National security and defence committee

The internal review was based on a June 8-11, 2009, visit by Canada Border Services Agency investigators to the Winnipeg headquarters of Winfall.

The report's findings come as no surprise to Colin Kenny, the Liberal-appointed senator who chairs the Senate's national security and defence committee.

"Trains are a big black hole," Kenny said from Calgary, the latest stop in the committee's current cross-Canada tour examining border and airport security.

He noted American customs officials use large X-ray machines at border points to inspect all trains arriving in the United States.

They have offered use of the machines to Canada — only to be turned down because the border service lacks the staff.

Sutter gets basic

Seeks to make Flames into a 'structured team'

Brent Sutter wanted his first messages to the Calgary Flames to be crystal clear.

The new head coach spoke to the club's veterans before they stepped on the ice yesterday about his expectations.

When the Flames hit the ice for the first time with him, Sutter occasionally stopped practice to point out positional flaws. If it seemed back-to-basics at times, Sutter made no apologies.

"I don't think there should be a grey area," Sutter said. "It's a new coaching staff so things are going to be different and it's important that the coaches relay things properly to the players so they can catch onto it as quickly as possible.

"We want to be a team that's a structured team and that has to include everybody. The veterans, the experienced players, have to be leaders in that category."

The 47-year-old from Viking, Alta., was hired by brother and Flames general manager Darryl Sutter to take the team further than the first round of playoffs, which is as far as Calgary has gone the last four seasons.

From his Western Hockey League Red Deer Rebels, to the Canadian junior teams of 2005 and 2006, to the NHL's New Jersey Devils, Brent Sutter's teams have been positionally sound and defensively responsible.

Defence is an area in which the Flames slid to No. 23 in the league last season.

"Looking back on last year, in our own zone we probably weren't as tight as we could have been," acknowledged captain Jarome Iginla. "We know we can improve in that area."

Green roofs for all

OddJobs

Diane Peters

Metronews.ca/oddjobs

Colin Viebrock's garage is very cool. It's custom made with stylish wooden slats on its exterior walls and a workshop inside. Plus it has a garden on the roof.

The pretty mixture of sedum, lavender, chives and other low plants lowers the surrounding air temperature — very cool — in summer, and helps insulate the garage in winter.

Viebrock, 38, had no intention of being on the cutting edge of green innovation when he sold his share of a downtown Toronto Internet company back in 2005. "I decided I wanted to build something real as opposed to things that weren't really real."

He didn't know what that was, but he'd always loved architecture and design and knew the design program AutoCAD. His garage was about to fall down and he called around trying to find someone to help him put a green roof on it. No one would work in such a small space.

So he spent the summer of 2006 rebuilding the garage and equipping it with a roof garden — the roof tilts slightly so he can see the greenery from the third floor of his house.

The blog he wrote about the project garnered interest. So that winter he took some home renovation courses at nearby George Brown College and then launched Green Garage and began installing green roofs on everything from sheds to houses.

For existing buildings, Viebrock starts by having an engineer assess the structure to see if it can withstand a minimum of three inches of soil. (When Viebrock designs the building, he makes it tough enough to take six inches.)

Viebrock then builds up the garden in layers, including a waterproof membrane, small rocks or gravel (for drainage) and an irrigation drip line.

Then comes a special lightweight soil that's a mix of compost and crushed stones and brick, which he carried up on the roof by hand using a ladder.

Finally, Viebrock puts in the plants — he's always experimenting to find a bigger variety that will grow on roofs.

He returns for a few visits after an install to check on the roof and do some weeding. Within about two years, garden fully fills in and needs little maintenance.

For small jobs, Viebrock will work alone using a rented van, but he'll hire a team for larger projects.

Diane Peters once hawked magic pens at the Canadian National Exhibition. She's now a writer and part-time journalism instructor.

Back from the dead

Matt Damon is alive, well and promoting new movie

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Contrary to news circulating on the internet, Matt Damon is not dead. He's very much alive and was laughing about the ridiculous rumour at a TIFF press conference.

"I don't know why that happens. That's a really reckless thing to do. I had to call my parents and everything," said the actor. "I got forwarded the story and when you read it, it just gets sillier and sillier.

"By the end the guy who is supposed to be my agent is quoting the lyrics from the Fresh Prince Of Bel-Air. And yet my publicist got all these phone calls from very reputable sources. CNN called, the Boston Globe called. It was crazy."

Fortunately the living Damon was able to visit Toronto to promote The Informant, a new collaboration with director Steven Soderbergh in which the actor plays a bipolar executive whistleblower who awkwardly goes undercover for the FBI. It's one of the actor's finest performances and one that he gained 30 pounds for, a la Robert DeNiro in Raging Bull.

"I sent (Steven Soderbergh) an email about two months before we were going to make it asking, 'What do you want this guy to look like physically?' He just wrote back 'doughy,'" revealed Damon.

"The rational was that Steven didn't want any hard edges on the character. He wanted him undefined as a metaphor for his personality. Of course, I only found out when I got there. I didn't question it. I just started eating," joked the actor.

Matt Damon relished his physical change for the film, "It felt fantastic. I just ate whatever I wanted and thought about nothing but the screenplay and the other actors," said Damon.

"It was really nice to not think about anything else, compared to a Jason Bourne movie where I come home from work and have to go straight to the gym. It takes too much time away from my family. I just prefer to eat."

The physical change pays off dividends in an almost chameleon-like performance from Damon. The actor's strong work is the centerpiece of a movie that Damon revealed he and Soderbergh had been toying with for years. "Scott Burns wrote it seven years ago and we've been sitting on it.

"We would refer back to it once or twice a year and we'd examined it enough to know that all the answers we needed were in the actual text when we started shooting. It was almost like doing a play."

Miller's ocean inspiration

Nicole Miller seemed to take inspiration from the ocean for her 2010 spring collection: There were mashups, slashes and asymmetrical dresses. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A softer, gentler look

NY Fashion Week puts away the armour for spring 2010

Since the economic downturn began, fashion designers have brought us plenty of hard-edged looks: rock-star leather, gladiator shoes, '80s-style shoulder pads.

The message was clear enough — fashion was preparing us for battle.

But for spring 2010, designers seem to be asking instead: Who wants a hug?

A softer, easier look dominated as New York Fashion Week entered its third day on Saturday. The look was, if not comfortable, at least less armour-like. At Adam, the soothing cream-and-beige palette was jazzed up just a bit with copper discs and seashells, and the heart of the Lacoste collection were easy, breezy apres-beach styles.

There were also several vibrant and optimistic looks: Lacoste sent models out for a finale in bright, sunshine yellow, from sunglasses to slip-on flats. Georges Chakra presented a series of candy-colored dresses.

But such a sunny disposition seemed a little out of place at the Mercedes-Benz Fashion Week tents, where the audience was still in almost all black, shod in gladiator sandals or studded boots.

Lay down your armour? The crowd says, not yet.

Christian Siriano

Designers from Project Runway have come and gone — sadly, mostly gone. But Christian Siriano has shown he plans to stay.

Siriano's spring 2010 collection was his third following his stint on the reality show, and in that time he's made his way to the windows of Saks Fifth Avenue and to the shoe aisles of Payless.

The collection was a lush take on Mediterranean travel, concluding with three intricate ball gowns that elicited spontaneous applause from a crowd that included actresses Mena Suvari and Tori Spelling and model Alessandra Ambrosio.

Adam

Adam Lippes' spring collection continued the season's move toward an easier, more elegant silhouette. The clothes also had a feeling of luxury — even if it was understated — something that had largely been missing from fashion the last season or two.

The cream ostrich feather skirt with wood and shell embroidery certainly made a statement, but paired with a simple linen tank, struck the right balance. A grey silk trench oozed sophistication.

An interpretation of a floral print had sharper lines than one typically expects from girlie flowers, but that gave it a modern feel and kept with the idea of a season of transition.

Lacoste

Fashion Week is all about what's new, what's next, but that doesn't mean the basics should get bashed. Lacoste creative director Christophe Lemaire sent out a spring collection that was cheerful, youthful and wearable — nothing wrong with that.

Starting off with tennis whites, most styles were cut long and lean, including the polo shirts.

The heart of the collection was the easy, beachy clothes that were inspired by 1920s photos of Jacques-Henri Lartigue, who "captured a generation of leisure for whom life was simple, sporty and chic."

Wu-ing the crowd

- Jason Wu seemed to have a different woman in mind: someone who could get away with feathers and very short skirts. Not that there weren't outfits for Mrs. Obama, who famously wore Wu's designs to the inaugural ball. There were tweed pants- and skirt-suits that were ladylike but not dated or stiff.

Fey, Fox among Creative Emmys winners

TV AWARDS Tina Fey received an Emmy Award for her impersonation of Republican vice-presidential contender Sarah Palin on the TV comedy show Saturday Night Live.

She was honoured at the Creative Arts Primetime Emmys, which recognize technical and other achievements for the 2008-09 season and preceded next weekend's main ceremony. Fey has the chance for more awards: She could repeat last year's win as best actress in a comedy series for 30 Rock, and the show also could again claim top comedy honours.

Justin Timberlake was another SNL winner Saturday, honoured as best guest actor in a comedy series.

On the drama side, Michael J. Fox won the guest actor award for his turn on Rescue Me, and Ellen Burstyn was honoured as best guest actress for Law&Order: Special Victims Unit.

"I always wanted one of these," Burstyn said.

In search of husband

The Wife's Tale

Authors: Lori Lansens
Publisher: Knopf Canada
Price: $29.95 (Hardcover)

Mary Gooch has grown unhealthily helpless in Leaford, Ont., drifting from her husband, decaying at a tedious job and depressed by her constant struggle with weight as a result of excessive eating. On the Gooch's 25th wedding anniversary, Mary's husband suddenly goes missing, forcing her to find the courage she's never had to muster. Mary takes a plane to Los Angeles, Calif., spurring a cross-country trip to find her missing high school sweetheart. In the process, Mary discovers herself, introduced to social and cultural differences that change her outlook on life and mobilize her to overcome her obesity.

More Than It Hurts You

Author: Darin Strauss
Publisher: Plume
Price: $18.50 (Paperback)

Long Island, N.Y., salesman Josh Golden's family and entire judgment system are shattered the day his eight-month-old son Zack is rushed to hospital. The infant had very recently suffered serious, unexplainable symptoms, but pediatric head Dr. Darlene Stokes places diagnosis instead on Josh's wife Dori, suspecting she has Munchausen syndrome. The ailment pinpoints the parent as the cause of injury in order to gain attention, shocking Josh. Suddenly, he's pitted against his wife, lawyers, media and the state, caught up in a battle for his son, coloured by his own racial and class-based biases.

BookPicks

The Settler's Cookbook

Author: Yasmin Alibhai-Brown
Publisher: Protobello Books
Price: $29.95 (Hardcover)

In Yasmin Alibhai-Brown's succulent new memoir, the multicultural commentator traces her heritage in terms of travel and the tongue. Her 19th century ancestors left India for East Africa to pursue work, then were forced from Uganda as part of an Asian purge in 1972 and finally settled in the U.K. Their historically transitioning sense of home is expressed through cultural variations on food Alibhai-Brown has experienced, acting as equal parts family biography and cookbook. From hot mango marmalade to Jena's Shepherd's Pie, Alibhai-Brown brings readers on a palatable journey through the past.

Stewart decks the halls with garlic to ward off vampires

LIFE IMITATING ART Kristen Stewart is scared of vampires, femalefirst.co.uk reports. The Twilight actress, who plays Bella in the vampire film franchise, is so terrified of the mythical blood-sucking creatures that she festoons her home with cloves of garlic in an attempt to deter them. A source told National Enquirer magazine: "People are always remarking how smelly it is, but Kristen doesn't care. She's been afraid of vampires for years, even before she signed up to do the movies, and read somewhere that garlic is supposed to repel them."

Transformers crew members blast 'dumb-as-a-rock' Fox

BUNFIGHT Crew members from Megan Fox's last Transformers film are lashing out at the actress, writing in an open letter on the film's blog that they've all shared "the tedious experience of working with the dumb-as-a-rock Megan Fox," and that they "had the unbearable time of watching her try to act on set," according to Radar Online. The unidentified crew members were coming to the defense of Michael Bay after Fox recently trashed the director, comparing him to Hitler. Bay "plucked her out of obscurity thus giving her the biggest shot of any young actress's life," the letter reads. "She's as about ungracious a person as you can ever fathom."

No Idol judging for Gaga

JUDGE NOT LEST YE BE JUDGED Lady Gaga hates TV talent shows, femalefirst.co.uk reports. The singer has no interest in being a judge on American Idol, insisting she would find it difficult to criticize someone else's talent. She said: "I did appear on the show but I am not going to be a judge. I generally feel uncomfortable judging other artists anyway. I don't feel that a musician's life is a contest." Gaga has also slammed shows that thrust new artists straight into the limelight, claiming they should spend time nurturing their talent. She said: "It's more about growing and struggling and playing live. It would be very uncomfortable for me to judge someone else."

A host of celebrity judges including Victoria Beckham, Shania Twain and Mary J. Blige have appeared on American Idol after Paula Abdul decided not to return for the new season. Last week, it was announced Ellen DeGeneres has replaced Paula on the judging panel, alongside Simon Cowell, Randy Jackson and Kara DioGuardi.

Surgery led to 'perfect storm': Mischa

TIME TO GET A NEW DENTIST Mischa Barton is finally telling her own side of the story of how she wound up in a psychiatric ward in July. Barton claims the pain from a botched wisdom teeth removal sent her over the edge. "It was sort of one of those things that was like a perfect storm," Barton told Barbara Walters on the View.

"I had so much work to do and the surgery had gone so badly for me. And I think that I was just starting to feel completely overwhelmed. It was just too much to have this surgery go so wrong."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Halibut with Egg Sauce

INGREDIENTS:
4 fresh or frozen and thawed halibut steaks, 1 in. (2.5 cm) thick
1 tbsp (15 ml) butter or margarine, melted
1 tbsp (15 ml) lemon juice
1/2 tsp (2 ml) garlic powder
1/4 tsp (1 ml) salt
1/8 tsp (0.5 ml) black pepper
Egg sauce (see below)

METHOD:
1. Preheat broiler. Rinse fish and pat dry. In small bowl, combine butter, lemon juice, garlic powder, salt, and pepper. 2. Arrange fish on lightly greased rack of broiler pan. Brush fish with half of butter mixture. Broil 5 inches from heat for 5 minutes. Using wide spatula, carefully turn fish over. Brush with remaining butter mixture. Broil 5 to 7 minutes more or until fish flakes when tested with fork. Serve with Egg Sauce.

EGG SAUCE:
In medium-size pot, whisk together 1/2 cup (125 ml) coffee cream, 2 tbsp (25 ml) all-purpose flour, 1/2 tsp (2 ml) dry mustard and 1/8 tsp (0.5 ml) each salt and black pepper. Whisk in 1/2 cup (125 ml) chicken broth. Cook over moderate heat, whisking constantly, 7 minutes or until mixture is thickened and bubbly. Stir in 2 chopped hard-boiled eggs and 1 tbsp (15 ml) minced parsley; heat through.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton sallybrompton.com

For Sally's expanded daily and weekend horoscopes, visit metronews.ca

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
Others may be impatient for you to commit yourself but if you are smart, you will hold back from getting involved.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
Even your best-laid plans may fall apart at the seams today, so don't expect too much. Try to adopt a relaxed and forgiving attitude.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
Don't worry too much if things don't work out as expected today because it's only a temporary setback. Have more patience with yourself.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
No matter how much others may beg you to loosen the purse strings today you must continue to say no.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
Passions will be running high today and there is no telling where they might lead, so think before you speak.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
Temptation will come knocking today and you will have a hard time saying no. The planets warn that if you give in, you may regret it later on.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
You may find it hard to control your emotions today as Jupiter, planet of exaggeration, brings out the jealous side of your nature.

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24-NOV 22
Certain people are determined to find fault with your efforts and all you can do is sit tight and wait for the storm to blow over.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23-DEC 21
Close your ears to gossip and rumour because hardly any of what you hear over the next 24 hours will be true.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
You may be tempted to get involved in a situation that you know is none of your business. Don't do it!

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
The more others urge you to make changes the more you must resist. Sit tight. Things will get better.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MARCH 20
Something you have grown used to will go out of your life today but the fact is it has been taking up more space than it deserves for quite some time.
